

JAMALL ANTHONY

SINGER | SONGWRITER | MUSICIAN

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Jamall Anthony (Born: Jamall Anthony Smith) is an American singer-songwriter, producer and actor. Prior to the release of his debut single "Summer 17", he wrote a host of melodic songs for a variety of signed multi-generational artists from diverse genres, including Pop, Rock, Country, Rap and R&B.

Jamall met James Ulrich, a professional drummer from the band Runner Runner who encouraged him to follow his dream in music. Shortly after this, lead vocalists and guitarists, Ryan Ogren and Nick Bailey, would reach out to Jamall after he posted a YouTube cover of their hit song, "I Can't Wait". They applauded his vocals and musical range. After having much success in his home state of Pennsylvania, performing alongside artists Ky-Mani Marley, The Wailers, Teyanna Taylor, Gin Blossoms and many others, Jamall decided to make a major move which would impact the direction of his career. He co-wrote the single, "All Washed Out", by the band Dreamers (Hollywood Records) which is featured on their EP, "FLY". He has also co-wrote the single, "Yours" with Greyson Chance (Sony Records) featured on his album, "Portraits." Jamall continues to increase his song placements and is working with some of the best artists, writers and producers from Hollywood to New York. Jamall also co-wrote "Guilty" by Sevnyn Streeter, Chris Brown and A$AP Ferg.
